Cops search for suspects in deadly teen shooting

Police are searching for two suspects who got in a deadly argument with a teenager in Brooklyn Saturday.

Kamau Chandler, 17, was found with a gunshot wound to the head and the chest just after 4 a.m. on Fulton Street in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn.

Chandler, of Coney Island, was taken to Interfaith hospital where he was pronounced dead.

Cops said Chandler and his friends were walking down Fulton Street when they were approached by two suspects. The group began to argue and one of the suspects, believed to be a black male, pulled out a gun and shot Chandler.

The first suspect, who is thin with short hair, was wearing an orange shirt with a strip on it.

Body found in Tompkins Square Park

A man was found dead in Tompkins Square Park in the East Village Saturday, police said.

Officers found a white male believed to be in his 30s in a field within the park around 8:20 a.m.

Emergency medical personnel pronounced the unidentified man dead at the scene.

A tipster told Gothamist that he found the dead body and that people believed the man had been there all night.

The Medical Examiner will determine the cause of death.

Police said the investigation is ongoing.

to her, in the context of a documentary she made about her experience, as "a demographic of one."

"It's so absurd," she said. "I know tons of people who have done this and it's not even necessarily from seeking them out [because of the film]."

As a career documentary filmmaker, making a movie of her experience was natural.

Now, she hopes it will help other women if they have a child on their own.

The film, she said, is about "female empowerment, like a woman feeling that 'I don't need a man to do this, I don't need a man psychologically, I don't need the validation from society, I don't have to do the same thing my parents did."

Being a New Yorker made her more comfortable with the experience.

"There's everything here and there's so much tolerance and openness," she said.

Davenport says, there is no such thing as a "typical" family in New York City: There are single-parent families, divorced families and children raised with two mothers or two fathers or even grandparents.

"I value that more than anything," she said.

Hudson. Bride-to-be, best man killed in boat crash tragedy

A bride-to-be and her fiancé's best man were found dead over the weekend after a 19-foot speedboat slammed into a construction barge near the Tappan Zee Bridge.

A body matching that of Lindsey Stewart, 30, was found on Saturday, two weeks before she was to be married. A second body confirmed to be her fiancé's best man, Mark Lennon, 30, was found Sunday, according to the Associated Press.

The groom-to-be, Brian Bond, 36, was one of four passengers rescued after the crash.

Cops believe the person driving the boat was intoxicated. ANNA SANDERS of gun buybacks, we can prevent the violence that devastates families and entire communities," City Council Speaker Christine Quinn said.

In an effort to combat gun violence, both the council and police have each contributed $150,000 to fund the programs, wherein New Police Commissioner Ray Kelly said the department was grateful the council identified funds to increase possible gun buybacks. "It's all about saving lives," Kelly said.

What is Osteoarthritis?

Osteoarthritis is the most common cause of knee pain and stiffness. The cartilage is the cushioning between the two bones that makes up the knee joint. When the cartilage begins to wear down you have less support and lubrication that protects the two bones in the knee from rubbing together. A doctor may describe arthritis as mild, moderate or severe. The most severe is often described as 'bone on bone'. Unfortunately, more often than not patients are told their knee is 'bone on bone'. If you are suffering from knee pain and considering knee replacement come see us at NY Rehab Pain Management.

- Do you wake up with knee pain?
- Does your knee pain keep you from certain activities?
- Have you been told you need a knee replacement?
- Are you active and sometimes suffer from sore knees?
- Do you take medications for knee pain?
- Do you have difficulty going up and down stairs due to knee pain?
- Are you considering surgery to alleviate knee pain?
- Have you tried everything to get rid of knee pain with no success?

Bill Thompson gives speech on race relations

Racial profiling.

The candidate talked about stop-and-frisk and the Trayvon Martin verdict.

Saying the city has institutionalized George Zimmerman's profiling of Trayvon Martin through stop-and-frisk, former city comptroller Bill Thompson gave a speech on race relations Sunday.

"If our government

profiles people because of skin color and treats them as potential criminals, how can we expect citizens to do any less?" Thompson said during a speech at a black church in Prospect Heights, Brooklyn.

The only black candidate for mayor, Thompson spoke about race in the city two weeks after Zimmerman was found not guilty of murdering 17-year-old Martin in Florida.

In the hours following the jury's decision, Thompson tweeted Martin was killed because he was black. Though he was criticized by some politicians and pundits for the remark, Thompson reaffirmed that thought during the speech.

Traffic. Three pedestrians killed over the weekend

Three pedestrians were killed in fatal collisions across New York City that happened over a 24-hour span.

The first fatal accident was Saturday, July 27, at 4:49 a.m. in Queens, where 34-year-old Latrishia Been was struck by a truck on the Van Wyck Expressway during a hit-and-run, police report. She was pronounced dead at the hospital.

Police arrested 34-year-old Carl Alvear in connection with the accident. Alvear has been charged with manslaughter.

Another fatal accident took place on July 27, in Brooklyn, where 44-year-old Jose Santiago was struck by a Chrysler at Nostrand Avenue and Avenue W. Santiago suffered head trauma and was later pronounced dead on arrival at Coney Island Hospital.

Deadly weekend

The three pedestrians all died within the same 24-hour period across New York City, police said.

The driver in the crash stayed on the scene and the accident investigation is still ongoing, police said.

The third accident took place Sunday morning at 5:41 a.m., in Manhattan at West 32nd Street and Fifth Avenue. A 49-year-old woman was trying to cross the street and was hit by a Chevrolet Camaro.

The victim's identity was being withheld pending family notification, and police said that the accident investigation is ongoing.

Losing hospitals

"Community hospitals in Brooklyn are standing on the brink." de Blasio

Super authority. The public advocate unveils a plan to protect hospitals.

Amid fears of Brooklyn hospital closures, Public Advocate Bill de Blasio is calling for a "super authority" to manage facilities in the borough and implement change for its health care system.

"If we don't act, they'll end up as condos and some of the poorest neighborhoods in the city will lose their emergency rooms, clinics and doctors," de Blasio said.

As part of a four-point plan to save Brooklyn hospitals that will be announced today, de Blasio proposes the creation of a Brooklyn Health Authority, a joint body through the city and state health departments.

ANNA SANDERS

anna.sanders@metro.us

Parts of the plan

- The plan comes as two hospitals — Long Island College Hospital and Interfaith Medical Center—are on the brink of closure because of falling revenues.

- Other parts of the plan include preventing hospital bankruptcies and coordinating construction of new health care facilities under one fund. Higher standards of care would also be implemented.

Software experts attack cars, will release coding

Car hacking is not a new field, but its secrets have long been closely guarded. That is about to change, thanks to two well-known computer software hackers who got bored finding bugs in software from Microsoft and Apple.

Charlie Miller and Chris Valasek say they will publish detailed blueprints of techniques for attacking critical systems in the Toyota Prius and Ford Escape in a 100-page white paper following several months of research they conducted with a grant from the U.S. government.

The two "white hats" — hackers who try to uncover software vulnerabilities before criminals can exploit them — will also release the software they built for hacking the cars at the Def Con hacking convention in Las Vegas this week.

They said they devised ways to force a Toyota Prius to brake suddenly at 80 miles an hour, jerk its steering wheel or accelerate the engine.

They also say they can disable the brakes of a Ford Escape traveling at very slow speeds, so that the car keeps moving no matter how hard the driver presses the pedal. But it is not as scary as it may sound at first blush.

Toyota Motor Corp. spokesman John Hanson said the company was reviewing the work. He said the carmaker had invested heavily in electronic security, but that bugs remained. / GETTY IMAGES

Quoted

"This particular attack was not performed remotely over the air, but as a highly aggressive direct physical manipulation of one vehicle over an elongated period of time, which would not be a risk to customers and any mass level."

Craig Daitch, Ford Motor Co. spokesman

They were sitting inside the cars using laptops connected directly to the vehicles' computer networks when they did their work.

So they will not be providing information on how to hack remotely into a car network, which is what would typically be needed to launch a real-world attack.

The two say they hope the data they publish will encourage other white-hat hackers to uncover more security flaws in autos so they can be fixed.

Spain accident. Driver in train crash faces questions from judge

The driver of a Spanish train that derailed was taken before a judge yesterday for questioning.

Francisco Garzon, 52, has been under arrest since shortly after the deadly accident on suspicion of reckless homicide, but has yet to be formally charged by a magistrate.

Garzon, who was released from the hospital on July 27 but remained in police custody, arrived at Santiago de Compostela's main courthouse at 6:15 p.m. yesterday in a police car with darkened windows.

It was not clear how long the closed-door hearing with the judge would last.

The judge will investigate the case and will also look at whether the train, the tracks or the security system that slows down the trains were at fault. REUTERS

Sermon. He told them to return home ready to work for social change.

Rio's famed Copacabana beach, usually the venue for scantily-clad sun-seekers and revelry, became a massive Catholic campground yesterday as Pope Francis concluded a youth festival by urging young people to go forth and build a new world.

Aerial television footage showed the sand and pavements blanketed with people for several miles along the shoreline.

"I was totally tranquil, waking up among the people on the beach. This view made it a very special and unique experience," said Aline Vonsovicz, a 23-year-old Brazilian.

The throng of people, many in the green and yellow Brazilian colors, gave Francis the kind of ecstatic welcome that he has received all through his trip to his home continent.

They shouted and sang as he was driven through the crowd in an open-sided pope mobile, stopping often to kiss babies offered to him by their mothers on the shoreline most famous for its bars, nightclubs and hedonist spirit.

His message to the young people in Rio for week-long World Youth Day festivities, sometimes called "the Church's Woodstock," was serious: They should not make their time in Rio a one-off experience. REUTERS

Freed Pussy Riot member calls for boycott of Russia

Cultural. The singer, jailed for anti-Putin song but freed on appeal, speaks about her cohorts.

After two members of Russian punk protest group Pussy Riot were denied parole last week, a third member who was also convicted but freed on appeal spoke to Metro. Here's what Yekaterina Samutsevich had to say in a Skype interview from Moscow about the group's fate, jail time and the human rights situation in Russia.

Last October you had your sentence suspended and freed on appeal. Are you free to go where you want and do what you want?

Not really. I am not allowed to leave Moscow without permission from a supervisor. And I can't leave Russia for two years. My biggest limitation is that I will be sent to prison if I break the law at any point. I can speak freely and meet people, however.

When was the last time you spoke with Nadja [Tolokonnikova] and Maria [Alyokhina]?

A long time ago. After the trial, I tried to call them in prison. I used false names. But quite soon they recognized my voice. I got a call in which I was told that this carry-on was not allowed and that they knew it was me. We still try to communicate, but carefully. But letters sometimes take months to arrive. I haven't been in contact with Maria and Nadja for a while now.

Russia is an important trading partner in the world. Is an embargo a good way to protest against the fall of human rights in Russia? Are you calling for this?

Everyone understands that less trade with Russia has consequences. An embargo is indeed an option, economical and cultural. Yes, in the fight for freedom of expression in Russia, I hereby call for an economical and cultural embargo on Russia.

Punk rock

Pussy Riot video game released

A video game that allows players to kill members of the feminist punk rock group Pussy Riot has been released online.

The game 'Don't Let Pussy Riot into the Cathedral' was first unveiled at a recent Orthodox festival held in Moscow.

Players control an Orthodox cross to zap cartoon images of band members, clad with colorful balaclavas and brandishing guitars, before they can enter a church.

If too many members enter, the church building collapses and the game is over. Then, to register your score on the table, you are asked to enter your name to pay an "indulgence" in order "to absolve all of your sins to the servant of God [St. Peter.]"

High class(room) couture

What do you wear when leading the next class of fashion designers?

BRUCE WALSH

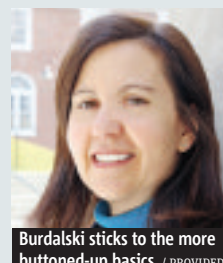

Fashion professors know that what they wear to class communicates almost as much to their students as their lesson plan. But classroom chic comes down to individual philosophy, according to the four fashion department leaders we talked to. (Fashionistas, take heed: We made sure to ask what looks could be hitting the classroom in the fall, too.)

Doreen Burdalski

Chair of the fashion department at Albright College

Look: Clean and classic
Frequently worn: Shift dresses, jackets
Favorite accessories: Earrings, scarves
Brands: Ann Taylor
What the prof will be wearing this fall: "I definitely won't try to be as trendy as the students. I came to teaching from the [business] side of fashion, so I wear a lot of classic suits. I used to wear constructed jackets, but I've been moving into a softer look for a while, and I think I'll continue that in the fall."

Burdalski sticks to the more buttoned-up basics. / PROVIDED

Lisa Hayes (standing) is pictured in a dress by Zero Maria Corneio, with designer Peter Som (center). / PROVIDED

Lisa Hayes

Program director for fashion design at Drexel University

Look: Niche-y, versatile (and teachable)
Frequently worn: Boots
Favorite accessories: None!
Brands: Prada, Helmut Lang
What the prof will be wearing this fall:

"I pride myself on wearing the fabrics and designs I teach. So my wardrobe is all part of my lesson. I think this fall will be all about leather, but in a clean geometric way. The leather trend has been going on for a while, but I think it'll hit its peak this year. And I have a number of leather pieces that I want to share with my classes."

Mary Justman

Program chair of fashion at Bauder College

Look: Fashion black with plenty of trend
Frequently worn: Dresses, pants, flats
Favorite accessories: Jewelry
Brands: Ralph Lauren, Elie Tahari, Bebe
What the prof will be wearing this fall: "I take what I wear seriously. I mean, how would you like it if your trend-forecasting instructor didn't know how to keep up with trends? For this fall I think we're going to see a looser fit on pants. For dresses, the emphasis is moving from the hip up to the waist."

JUSTMAN SAYS THAT DRESSES THAT ACCENTUATE THE WAIST, LIKE THIS ONE FROM ELIE TAHARI, WILL BE SEEN THIS FALL. / PROVIDED

Rewriting through the trauma

Real education.

Professor Laura Gray-Rosendale talks about taking her time with the delicate subject matter of her memoir.

Northern Arizona University professor Laura Gray-Rosendale has been working on "College Girl" for more than 20 years — writing, scrapping, rediscovering and rewriting the manuscript in an almost ceaseless process. She says she refused to settle for an inauthentic memoir or, worse, a solipsistic telling of her life's deepest trauma: the rape she suffered at college when she was 20 years old.

"I didn't want the book to be about self-pity in any way, shape or form. So I knew I had to write the 'oh poor me' stuff first to get it out of the way," says Gray-Rosendale. "There are places for that in one's life, but in order to get at the real experiences, those self-pitying lenses have to be removed."

And, as Gray-Rosendale cut and reformed the pages, she happened upon a nonlinear way of telling the story that dovetailed with the experience of trauma: "I needed to portray what it's like to be in a place in your mind and body where time changes. This happens for all sorts of trauma survivors: Time shifts, the way you look at space shifts, the way you perceive everything around you changes."

Today, Gray-Rosendale is an English professor at Northern Arizona University. She has written a number of textbooks and classroom aids, but certainly nothing as personal as "College Girl." At first she was reluctant to share the book with her students, but so far the feedback has been well worth it.

"They were able to tell me, 'I could feel what you were feeling. I have experienced those feelings,'" she says. "In the end, I was so glad that some of them read it, because it gave me confidence that the book really does speak to people who are 20 years old right now."

We check in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Today, Lena Dunham is not excited about going to a party and Russell Brand is putting safety first.

@lenadunham: If you'd have told 7 year old me that I'd still be expected to attend birthday parties in 20 years I woulda ended it right then and there.

@rustyrocks: I'm in Lake Tahoe about to do a show. I got in the lake, the California part, in the Nevada bit I would've used protection.

'And all the girls dreamed that they'd be your partner, they'd be your partner ...'

Carly Simon joined Taylor Swift on stage Saturday for a duet of Simon's hit, "You're So Vain," during the country crooner's RED tour stop in Foxborough, Mass. Can anyone else picture Swift singing this into her hairbrush in her pre-teen bedroom, which probably had pictures of John Mayer on the wall? Suddenly, Taylor's mom calls from downstairs that dinner's ready. "Coming, Mom!" she yells, feverishly adding "perform a duet with Carly Simon" to her bucket list, which exists in the back of her math notebook next to doodles of Drew, the cute boy who sits in front of her.

The latest in Bynes' sad spiral

Yesterday, RadarOnline posted an interview with one of Amanda Bynes' former friends, Ana Rivera, who told the site that Bynes' mom Lynn has had some serious sway on her daughter's appearance over the years.

"She told me she wanted to be 100 pounds," Rivera told the site. "When she was in the film 'Love Wrecked,' she had just got mononucleosis and lost a load of weight, and her mum told her she'd never looked better."

I'm pretty sure Amanda was not looking her best while under mono's spell. If her bout was anything like mine, the utter lack of energy coupled with unkempt hair was nothing to write home about.

DJ proposes to Minaj, is a bit of a show-off

Only an emotion as beautiful as love could convince a rapper famous for songs like "Out Here Grindin'" to pledge his devotion to one special lady. If you're DJ Khaled, that special lady is Nicki Minaj, who was on the receiving end of a video marriage proposal from the DJ and rapper over the weekend.

"Nicki Minaj, I'm at MTV, I'm going to be honest with you; I love you. I like you, I want you, I want you to be mine," he said in a video message to Minaj. (Related: These two aren't even dating.)

"We got the same symptoms, we're both suffering from success," he added, in reference to his forthcoming album, "Suffering from Success."

On Friday Minaj retweeted the video. But on Saturday, according to HipHop365.com, Minaj filed a restraining order against Khaled.

Technically, she hasn't said "no," but if that restraining order stays, it would certainly be an odd marriage. Though we've seen weirder showbiz relationships (we're looking at you, TomKat).

JIM RASH

The "Community" actor and Oscar-winning screenwriter dwells on the pen with "The Writers' Room."

DEAN PELTON SPEAKS

GETTY IMAGES

Jim Rash's résumé is already pretty robust. He's earned acclaim as a comic actor ("Community"), director ("The Way, Way Back") and screenwriter ("The Descendants," for which he and co-writer Nat Faxon won an Oscar). But there's always room for more. His latest gig is hosting "The Writers' Room," a roundtable discussion series going behind the scenes of fan-favorite television series like "Breaking Bad," "Game of Thrones" and "New Girl."

The idea of TV being "the writer's medium" has really taken hold with audiences. Where do you think that's coming from?

I feel it's because of this rabid fan base, this need for knowledge that we all have. I feel like they have respect now for the storytelling. Not that no one had an idea where it came from, but I feel like people have a newfound respect for good stories. I think TV's in a really great place right now as far as embracing flawed, sometimes questionable people, from "Dexter" to "Breaking Bad" to any of these shows like "Mad Men" — complex characters that you get so frustrated by. In the age of binge-watching, catching up on shows that you missed, all these things lead you to wondering about the story.

Tune in

"The Writers' Room" premieres tonight at 10 p.m. on the Sundance Channel.

If you could pick any series, living or dead, from television history for the show, what are your dream choices?

It's tough. I'd be very curious talking to "M*A*S*H" writers, just because I have a fascination with the balance of comedy and extreme drama. I feel like I'd want to do a moment with the "Cheers" writers, just because that's probably the quintessential show of my life. Then I think I would want to sit down with "Lost" [writers], because I have a lot of questions, being a guy who watched from the beginning with groups.

- No hospitalization required. The procedure is performed at our clinic
- Resumption of normal activities right away
- Covered by Medicare and most insurance plans

Do Not Postpone Treatment

Varicose veins can start out as a seemingly small problem, but left untreated, can become much more serious. Complications of varicose veins may include ulcers. These may form on the skin near the affected veins, particularly near the ankles.

They are caused by fluid build-up in the dysfunctional veins and can be extremely painful.

Dysfunctional veins can also increase the risk of blood clots. Patients may experience a swelling in the leg, which may indicate a blood clot. Left untreated, these clots can travel through the bloodstream and lodge near the heart or lungs, causing potentially life-threatening health problems.

If you have already decided you'd like to receive vein treatments or would like to get a diagnosis, simply schedule an appointment with USA Vein Clinics today by calling (718) 732-0231.

Escape to an island in New York City

Explore. Need to get out of the city? Take a ferry, tram or train to one of these three islands.

Sometimes you need to get away, but not for long. Those days are perfect for one of the islands dotting Manhattan's borders, many of which are jam-packed with summer activities. If you haven't made it out to one, it's not too late! From an African festival to electric music, here are some events to check out before summer slips away.

Governors Island

Get on wheels when the Skate Truck NYC stops by Governors Island in New York Harbor, providing roller-skating equipment.

Take a ferry to the Jazz Age Lawn Party at Governors Island. / THE TRUST FOR GOVERNORS ISLAND

The mobile truck rents out roller skates and inline skates around the city in spots like Central Park. The company also provides skate lessons, so channel your inner middle schooler at a birthday party and strap on the skates to take a spin on the paths around the island. Aug. 11, 24, 25 and 31; Sept. 1 and 2 events of summer, the Jazz Age Lawn Party, has its second weekend extravaganza in August. The ferry over to Governors Island is filled with people sporting flapper dresses and 1920s accessories, and on the island's lawn, live jazz and dance performances are surrounded by games and gourmet food for all ages. Aug. 17 and 18

Celebrate the African continent at the African Film Festival in August, which hosts films about the region's vibrant culture. Before or after a film, stop by a dance class from superb instructors hailing from Brazil, Senegal and Guinea. The event also includes drumming, free storytelling and quilting demonstrations. You can also snack on African cuisine. Aug. 4

Randall's Island

The Electric Zoo festival returns to Randall's Island

Park during the Labor Day weekend. Randall's Island, if you haven't yet been, is along the East River between Manhattan, Queens and the Bronx, and it also hosted the Governors Ball music festival earlier this summer. Huge crowds attend this electronic dance music festival, which features performances ranging from the duo Above & Beyond to Connecticut native Audien. Aug. 30 through Sept. 1

Roosevelt Island

If you haven't yet taken the tram to Roosevelt Island, it's time to stop by this sliver of land in the East River. Stop by on the tram, or the F train, for the last few films in their outdoor Summer Movie Series, featuring "Rocky" Aug. 10 and "Inception" Aug. 24.

Interviews. The cast of "Blue Jasmine" talks about Woody Allen's unusual directing methods.

When she was being courted to play the fallen Manhattan socialite lead in Woody Allen's "Blue Jasmine," Cate Blanchett talked to the filmmaking legend for, by her calculations, three minutes. Then she read the script. Then they talked for 45 more seconds. The third time they spoke was when shooting started.

With Peter Sarsgaard, who plays a minor role in the film, Allen was even more concise. They talked for 45 seconds. Then they saw each other on set.

Louis C.K. auditioned for one role: a tough guy for which he was, to say the least, not appropriate. ("I just wanted to meet [Allen]," C.K. admits. "I thought he wouldn't pick me. But I'd get to meet him — before he dies.") He was instead offered another, smaller role. The news came not from Allen himself, but from an envelope delivered to his house. Inside were his three scenes — and no others. He had 40 minutes to read them before they were sent back.

None of this is surprising. Allen is infamous for his oddly ultra-secretive production methods. He

Quoted

"He's already in the seats, watching the film with a crowd. Because he's a comedian."

Louis C.K. on Woody Allen

never allows actors to see the full scripts (unless, like Blanchett, they're in nearly every scene). And he never tells his performers why he cast them.

"When I got the call that Louis had failed," jokes Andrew Dice Clay, who won C.K.'s original role, "I actually thought my manager was kidding. I never thought he could see past the persona I play on stage as a comic." But Allen put his trust in the dirty, '80s stand-up king, even if he rarely gave him specific comments. "I think the direction comes in his casting. He gets as close to the part on the page with the person, then he lets you really work with it."

Only knowing what happens to their characters, but not the entire film, can confuse actors — but perhaps for good. "In some ways the lack of information made me play the character a certain way," Sarsgaard says. "I was in my own little world. I interacted with almost no one else, and the person I was interacting with [Blanchett's character] might have been unreliable."

Of course, the myth of Woody Allen, the impenetrable and mysterious artist who doesn't tell his actors anything, is a bit overstated. "Sometimes he would say to me, 'You kind of dumped that one, let's try something better,'" C.K. remembers. "One thing he said that stuck with me was, 'That pause was too long for the audience.' That told me the audience was with him. He's already in the seats, watching the film with a crowd. Because he's a comedian."

Weekend box office. 'Wolverine' 'only' did really, really well

"The Wolverine," starring Hugh Jackman as Marvel Comics' sharp-clawed superhero, slashed its way to $55 million in U.S. and Canadian ticket sales to claim the box office crown in a summer that hasn't been kind to some other big-budget action films.

"The Conjuring," the low-budget horror film that led last weekend's box office, slipped to second place, with $22.1 million in domestic sales from Friday through Sunday, per studio estimates. The film has generated nearly $84 million in overall ticket sales, a surprisingly strong showing for a film that cost just under $20 million to make.

The animated film "Despicable Me 2," featuring the voice of comic actor Steve Carell, finished third with $16 million in ticket sales in its fourth week in movie theaters. The film was made by Universal Pictures and has collected more than $660 million in ticket sales around the world.

Animated film "Turbo," about a super-speedy snail with dreams of racing in the Indy 500, took the No. 4 slot with sales of $13.3 million. Ryan Reynolds provides the voice for the title character in the film produced by "Shrek" creator DreamWorks Animation.

In recent weeks "R.I.P.D.," "Pacific Rim," "The Lone Ranger" and "White House Down" have all fizzled or underperformed at the box office.

Reviews were mixed to solid on "The Wolverine," with a 68 percent positive rating on review aggregation website Rotten Tomatoes. The film received an A-minus CinemaScore rating based on moviegoers' input.

WHEN ONLINE BATTLES BECOME OFFLINE STRESSES

PLUS

Survey says

What Americans are most stressed about:

- 1 Their jobs (27 percent)
- 2 Spending time with extended family (12 percent)
- 3 Spending time with their spouses/partners (11 percent)

Source: Aetna's "What's Your Healthy?" survey

I was "defriended" by an acquaintance after I made what I thought was a pretty funny comment on one of his political Facebook posts. Am I the only one who finds Facebook stressful?

Not at all. As a psychotherapist in private practice, I can't help but notice that Facebook is wreaking mischief in some of my clients' personal lives.

Social media offers the online universe a whole new arsenal to offend, snub, flirt with, spy on and make public declarations about those we "like" and those we don't. Given the growing ranks of users, it's not surprising that Facebook is making its way onto the therapy couch.

According to psychologists at Edinburgh Napier University, Facebook stresses people out. In a study of 200 students, researchers observed a correlation between stress levels and the number of Facebook "friends." Apparently, the more friends a person has, the more one worries about missing important social information, offending contacts, rejecting user requests, deleting unwanted contacts, being entertaining or using appropriate etiquette for different types of friends. Additionally, Facebook can engender lifestyle envy.

Lest the messenger be confused with the message, one might argue that Facebook isn't necessarily creating drama, just reflecting subtle relationship dynamics that lurk beneath the surface. Social media is, after all, a modern form of storytelling. Where else can I follow the daily chronicles of my childhood friends and long-lost relatives?

But by pronouncing precisely who likes and doesn't like who and who is doing what, Facebook tells us what we might otherwise never know and perhaps wish we could ignore.

My advice: Think about the consequences before you comment on other people's posts. If you get into a tiff, you can always apologize online or offline.

You can also take a break or stop visiting the site altogether. After all, social media is not the same thing as face-to-face interactions, which are ultimately more rewarding.

On the Run

JIM CARROLL

Jim Carroll has been a New Yorker for more than 15 years, but is about to experience one of the most quintessential New York experiences for the first time: the ING NYC Marathon. Join him each week on his journey to the finish line on Nov. 3

When I run, I usually find myself thinking about a lot of things. The mind generally hates running, so it wanders aimlessly like tourist in front of you as you try to get to work on time (just kidding, tourists, we love you ... as long as you stay to the right while riding on escalators).

Thoughts can range from "Oh, look, a pretty butterfly" to "I'm going to die alone and that's really going to suck." But the thought that comes to my mind the most is "Why am I running?" This particular thought is a dangerous one, and can get me into trouble. It usually comes in the first mile or two, or at 6 a.m. before a long training run. Why? Why does anyone run? Do we really need to?

It's not like I'm running from anything (like a bear, for instance) or running to anything (to get a fire extinguisher, let's say). It seems that things like fire, or angry bears, or the dreaded fire-breathing bear, make sense for a person to start running — but to run just to run, at times, seems just plain stupid. It's at these moments I almost stop, which is dangerous, because running overall seems to be about momentum. To stop is to stop, and that can start to kill one's spirit. After the body and mind cease to cooperate, the spirit is the only thing left that seems to push runners to finish their run, whether it be a 5K, a marathon or to safety from a fire-breathing bear.

When it comes to the physical aspect of getting ready for a marathon, nothing can test the body like a marathon training program. I recently started The Run S.M.A.R.T. Project training program through the New York Flyers, a local running club I just joined. Right now, I run about 32 miles a week, and that will gradually increase until race day.

The physical side effects from such training, so far, have ranged from walking across my living room like an 85-year-old with rickets, to screaming in the morning like a 6-year-old girl from the pain of intense calf cramps (my neighbors keep waiting to meet my daughter, who apparently suffers from occasional early morning nightmares — let them believe what they want). As noted by many marathon veterans, a major key to training for a marathon is actually making it to the marathon. I'm starting to see what they mean. This is tough on everything that makes us human: mind, body and spirit.

The good news is my spirit seems healthy. In fact, it seems to be getting stronger. That, perhaps, is the main thing that will get me to Nov. 3.

The Broad Experience

ASHLEY MILNE-TYTE

Ashley Milne-Tyte is a radio producer and reporter based in New York City. She hosts a bi-monthly podcast called "The Broad Experience" about women in the workplace.

WOMEN DOING IT FOR THEMSELVES

Female entrepreneurship has always lagged behind men's — for decades, women couldn't even open a bank account without a husband or male relative co-signing — but women are making up for lost time. Between 1997 and 2013, the number of women-owned businesses leapt by 59 percent.

Today, according to American Express Open's annual report on female entrepreneurs, there are 8.6 million women-owned businesses in the U.S., and almost a third of firms are owned by women. Entrepreneurship for women is also undergoing a demographic shift: Back in 1997, 17 percent of firms were owned by women of color. Today, that number is 31 percent.

Julie Weeks of Womenable, a consultancy, says all this reflects women's growing educational accomplishments, experience in the workplace and confidence. Still, entrepreneurship is far from an easy road.

Advice

Stay on top of your finances

You no longer have a regular paycheck, and to bring in money you'll need to spend some money.

If being your own accountant terrifies you, don't let it: There's tons of software out there that can help.

8.6M

Entrepreneurship is on the rise for women. / GETTY IMAGES, CREATAS RF

The numbers have it

59%

Between 1997 and 2013, the number of women-owned businesses leapt by 59 percent.

"Only one in 10 or so adults in the U.S. owns their own business," she says. "It is a daunting thing to do. If you don't work, you don't get a paycheck. You have to have a certain iron gut to take that step and do it."

Although plenty of women have that iron gut, women-owned businesses bring in just 4 percent of business revenues. In short, most women-owned firms stay small — very small. Julie Weeks spends a lot of time talking about how female-owned businesses can grow, employ others and help the economy. But she recognizes that many women want to be "solopreneurs" — to build their work around their schedules, to serve clients on their own terms.

Tips

It's really all up to you

When going out on your own for the first time, a few rules apply:

- Be prepared to work hard — probably harder than you ever did in an organization. You are now responsible for landing all your own work. Many entrepreneurs need to be in perennial marketing mode.
- Make sure your online presence is up to scratch — that means having an attractive website that accurately describes what you do, and using social media on a regular basis. Depending on what you do, you may also want to start a blog. Have an opinion. You need to stand out among many competitors.

Horoscope

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22.
In a friendly competitive game, don't make winning so important that it spoils the fun.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22.
It's fine to do things that make you look good, but only if your actions don't come at the expense of another. Be extra careful to avoid falling into this pattern unthinkingly.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22.
Usually you go out of your way to be an extremely diplomatic person, but this wonderful quality might desert you today.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21.
Be alert for uncertainties in your affairs. Conditions could have a disturbing influence on your dealings.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21.
This might not turn out to be such a nifty day if you and your mate, partner or friend cannot agree upon a social outing. Toss a coin.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20.
Be wary of falling into patterns that are self-defeating or more complicated than they need to be. Work on figuring out effective shortcuts.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18.
A well-intentioned pal isn't likely to be the one you should go to for some constructive advice. Talk to someone with a valuable distance from the matter.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20.
A major achievement won't be denied you, if you have the fortitude and/or tenacity to attain it.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20.
If you find yourself in a position where you must make a decision that would affect friends who hold opposing positions, try to be as impartial as possible.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21.
In order for a joint endeavor to work out, you need to make sure there is parity between the players.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20.
Be careful not to veto a partner's wishes without careful consideration. You'd be asking for a real blowup.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22.
Don't expect a co-worker to take care of an onerous chore for you without offering to do the same for him or her down the line, fully intending to stand by your word. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Weiner not held in high regard

What I wish for in a politician is his ability to think with his brains along with his heart, and not his crotch.

If his wife wishes to forgive him, that is her adult decision. However, no one has observed that this man has not considered the impact on the future life of his young son regarding his father's selfish, egotistical actions.

That to me is the most despicable part of this man's narcissistic lifestyle.

PAT DASKO, VIA EMAIL

I call myself "liberal up to a point," and Bill Clinton, John Edwards, Eliot Spitzer and now

Anthony Weiner have passed it.

These are not mistakes like losing your keys; they are deliberate, self-initiated and repeated acts of doing something bad and getting away with it. They call into question his judgement, character, honesty, integrity, openness, personal philosophy and ability and willingness to learn from misdeeds, all of which, in a mayor or any public servant, should be absolutely unquestionable.

Soriano walks off Yanks with win, but Jeter steals the show

MLB. Derek Jeter returned to Yankee Stadium in style.

Derek Jeter did not want to be the savior, but it's fair to say yesterday he was the igniting force for an offense that had gone two weeks without a home run.

All it took was one pitch, as Jeter drove one the opposite way over the right-center field fence in the first inning of Sunday's 6-5 win decided on Alfonso Soriano's ninth-inning single.

"I just wanted to get a pitch to hit," Jeter said. "Fortunately, it was a fast-ball away."

"He's a movie," manager

Joe Girardi said. "That's what he is. You think about his 3,000th hit, how he did that, and think about what he did today."

"I played with him 2001 to 2003 and nothing's changed," Soriano said of Jeter's dramatic return.

Jeter's memorable home run was the first by a right-handed hitter since June 25, a span of 28 games.

"We hadn't hit a home run since the All-Star break; we hadn't had a right-handed home run in a month," Girardi said. "For him to come out and do that — that's his first at-bat — he's a movie."

Torres ended with a line of three innings pitched and eight earned runs on nine hits in Washington's 14-1 victory. Every Nationals starter had a hit besides Adam LaRoche and the

Nos. 6-8 hitters were a combined 10-for-12 with 10 RBIs and eight runs scored.

In each of his previous two starts, Torres (1-2) had allowed just one run. METRO

Suffering from terrible anal pain? Does it hurt to go to the bathroom?

You may have an anal fissure. (We're completely serious and may be able to help)

You may qualify for a research study of an investigational cream. All study related medication and treatment will be provided at no cost. You do not need health insurance to participate. If eligible, you will be compensated for time and travel.

To find out if you qualify, email VEN307@ventrusbio.com call 855-4-PAINAF (855-472-4623) or visit www.clinicalstudysites.com

Are you experiencing decline in sexual satisfaction?

- Are you female?
- Are you post-menopausal?
- Have you been experiencing symptoms associated with overactive bladder?

If yes, you may be eligible for free treatment using a novel therapy.

Our study seeks to understand if there are any optimal therapies that improve the efficacy of treatment of overactive bladder and female sexual dysfunction for postmenopausal women.

If you are interested in participating or want to learn more about this study, please contact our clinical research coordinator by phone, (646) 962-9395, or email, cld3002@med.cornell.edu

Obsessive Compulsive Disorder

Are you bothered by recurrent and disturbing thoughts (obsessions) or irresistible urges to check or repeat things (compulsions)?
Examples of obsessions are concerns with contamination, intrusive images or fear of terrible things happening.
Examples of compulsions are checking for safety, excessive washing, or time-consuming rituals.

The Icahn School of Medicine at Mount Sinai's Department of Psychiatry is recruiting participants for a new investigational medication research study. The study is for Obsessive Compulsive Disorder (OCD) and eligible participants will receive study related procedures and study medication at no charge.

To qualify for the study, you must:

- Be between the ages of 18 and 65
- Currently be taking medication for OCD
- Continue to have symptoms of OCD while on medication

Ryan deals with questions about power structure

NFL. John Idzik indicated it won't be all Rex Ryan's call on who starts at QB.

All decisions are "Jets decisions," so says head coach Rex Ryan in defending how the team handles its personnel.

General manager John Idzik seemed to undermine the head coach he inherited on Saturday, saying decisions such as the outcome of the quarterback competition between Mark Sanchez and Geno Smith would be done by committee. Ryan, as head coach, would typically that would fall under his control.

"What's funny is, I'll sit down and talk to the quarterbacks and ultimately that's who's telling the quarterback," Ryan said. "But at no time is it a one-man show. It's always a team decision. That's the way it's always been."

A league source tells Metro New York that since his arrival, Ryan has always had final say on who starts.

"It was always discussed, but it was his call," the source said. "Rex always decided who played."

Giants' Hill admits to marijuana use

Giants safety Will Hill admits he's made mistakes during his 23 years, but he was quick to point out his ordeals are a great study in nature versus nurture.

Hill was slapped with a suspension for testing positive for marijuana and will start the season on the suspended list for the second straight season, following last season's positive Adderall test.

"I've been through so many stressful times and the way I grew up [using marijuana] was second nature," said Hill. "Growing up and just walking down the street and people putting guns in your face, it's stressful. You really don't know how to deal with things when you're faced with stuff like that." TONY WILLIAMS
